Brunch with Birds

Delhi has a record of 400 bird species which makes it a bird-friendly city. Despite its dense human population, Delhi is a birdwatcher's paradise, thanks to old avenue trees, a large number of parks, historical monuments with gardens, colonial bungalows with large lawns, and the famous Delhi Ridge. Also active bird clubs such as Delhi Bird Club are keeping up the spirit of bird watching among the Delhities. Banking on this popularity, the BNHS brings its unique event to this city.

Brunch with Birds is a European concept which was first started in India by BNHS in Mumbai in 2005. This event include activities range of interactive activities for adults and children. The programme includes a birding trip inside Asola Bhatti Wildlife Sanctuary.
